Dropfront

Command the battlefield with a hand of cards. Then drop in and win the fight that decides it yourself.

Win the map with cards, then win the fight yourself

a match mid-battle · 5 points

How it plays

1. Command. Every 15 seconds you draw a hand. Spend energy to send squads, bait the enemy, or sabotage its points.
2. Gear up. Play gear cards to equip your hero with up to two weapons and tools. Discard one to swap in what the next fight needs.
3. Drop in. When a point is fought over, jump in for a 20-second top-down firefight. Win it and the point is yours.

A dieselpunk war over an industrial outpost. The enemy commander plays the same game: it sends squads, plays tactics, and drops its own champion into fights it wants to win.

Why it's fun

- Every turn is a trade. Energy is short, and squads, tactics, gear and drop-ins all want it.

- Short fights with big stakes. Twenty seconds of action can flip the whole map.
- Gear for the situation. A shotgun to clear a crowded point, a jump pack to reach a far one, a bomber run to break the enemy champion.

A match at a glance

Match length	5 to 8 minutes
Map	5 capture points
Command turn	Every 15 seconds
Drop-in	20 seconds
Gear slots	2 equipped at a time
Platform	Browser, mouse and keyboard, touch supported

Play the prototype